

Some thoughts I have had recently:

1. If you haven't said something stupid in front of people you didn't want to know you were able to do that, you have not lived.
2. When a man has all the money he wants, the next acquisition is power.
3. There is a time when the phrase "and this too shall pass," while true, is just not appropriate.
4. The bright flash held little evidence of the devastation to come. AND THE EARTH WAS WITHOUT FORM AND VOID.
5. You can put some tame in a wild one, but you can't put wild in a tame one.
6. It was one of those times when you try and beat the devil, and when it was over, you did not know if you had won or not.
7. The soul loves complexity. Not neat, not clean, but ragged like torn cloth, uneven edges that go nowhere and an emptiness known only to itself.

JPR